

Life is full of delightful melody

When you look up into the blue sky
You will find a great big smile through the clouds
Smiles are what fill us with delight
And bring us back to our good old days

Dear Korean War Veterans

Hello, I'm a middle school student in Korea named Lee Sun Jae. I used to think that the Korean War was just fighting between the North and South, so when I found out that other countries had helped us, especially America, I was very surprised. When I learned about what these foreign soldiers have done for us, I really began to appreciate the importance of Korean War veterans. Most of these veterans experienced many appalling things. For example, many of their friends and comrades were killed at a dreadfully young age and thousands returned home with physical and emotional scars. I think that the fight must have been the most shocking experience. Nonetheless, you overcame all that and sacrificed so much. In order that we can still live in our country, Korea, safely and happily. Nobody in this world could have done what you did: endured a most terrifying experience, so I really respect everyone who fought in the Korean War.

I hope that the world comes to know more of your participation in a war fought to protect freedom and democracy. We in Korea enjoy our liberty as a result of your blood, sweat and tears and are eternally grateful. Some of you, it is true, are no longer with us, but your kindness will be forever remembered and your sacrifice never forgotten.

Sincerely, Lee Sun Jae

P.S. Bok Dol-i will bring you a luck!
